Guidelines on who should be referred to an ECLO

R N I B

See differently

This brief guide for medical and clinical staff, GPs, Nurses and Optometrists will help you refer patients to an ECLO (Eye Clinic Liaison Officer) who is there to offer practical and emotional support to anyone affected by sight loss, their families and carers.

Your ECLO would welcome referrals for anyone who:

- Has any degree of sight loss, or is affected by sight loss. They may have a new diagnosis of a sight threatening condition, or had sight loss for a while. This includes family members, carers and friends.
- Has been offered or considered for certification as sight impaired (SI) or severely sight impaired (SSI), or who meets the eligibility guidelines. This includes those who are newly certified, those who are unsure, and those whose certification status has changed (i.e. from SI to SSI).
- Might benefit from emotional support. For example, anyone who appears to be upset or distressed, has not understood or taken in what you have said, or is expressing concerns about their future.
